a) Main goal of paper: My papers main goal is the presentation of ERP systems in a way that it can be clear for those, who are not really aware of this field. In my opinion it is cardinal for latter or now graduating students to have a grasp of them, because they are going to have to use them in a form in their future workplaces.

b) Content of paper: The introduction and review of these systems realised with the help of SAP and the Hungarian SYB system. The aim of the representation of the two softwares, which were developed for different types of corporations, is that ERPs vary on a large scale and for a grander understanding one needs the introduction of variances. I managed this with their function descriptions, the portrayal of the positive and negative aspects and the length of the learning process.

My other goal was to present and evaluate my research of the need and usage of ERP systems amidst the mid and small corporations of Békés County, Hungary. My research depended on a survey with the help of these corporations.

c) Achieved results: I managed to make conclusions on corporation function descriptions, the portrayal of the positive and negative aspects and the length of the learning process. Analysing the reason of why the SME-s do not utilise these systems I confirmed that the field of ERPs have not yet been exploited.
