5. Content (max. 25 lines)

a) Main goal of paper

My goal is to show a comprehensive picture of the actual competitiveness of the Visegrad countries and their position in the EU. Such a kind of analysis could provide useful results for the decision makers in the future. The economic crisis didn't affect the same way each country so they need a specified approach to the development.

b) Content of paper

To analyze and understand the differences we need a complex approach. There was published several study about the competitiveness. However, these studies mostly covered only a short term period and created several scientific discussions so we need further examination of changing situation.

According to this, I elaborated a study which shows huge range of different indicators and indexes and conclude to result that the development in which areas should be accelerate.

Furthermore, the EU initiates that the most important and effective tool to get closer to the more developed countries and to reduce the gap between the EU member states is the improvement of the competitiveness.

c) Achieved results

In my paper I draw a general and comprehensive picture about the position of the Visegrad countries. The results of my research could be the basics of the success, provided by the economical, social and environmental developments resources.
